

MOTHER'Z BOYZZ

Pink Cadillac

Vringsbrock Records

Anyone out there who misses 70's Status Quo and 80's Rose Tattoo? Well you can put the bottle down because here come Mother'z Boyzz from Germany to put things right.

Yes, if scuzzy blues biker rock with shuffles galore is your thing then I can guarandamntee that you are going to enjoy this. Turns out they started life as a fun side project but once mainman Wolfgang Schmidder realised that this was a Good Thing he got on with the business of rocking.

It's no frills boogie rock with Supersuckers style gruff vocals and it's the kind of thing that will wear a hole in your carpet if you don't remember to keep moving your tapping foot. The opening "Pink Cadillac" is very ZZish but the delightfully named "Ice Cubes Pissin" goes full on Quo boogie.

After that it should be no surprise to learn that there is a lot of humour in the lyrics as the slow, grinding "Non Talkin' Woman Blues" attests. An extra bonus is the Hammond organ which pops up hither and thither to add some extra sauce. And a delicious one at that. Although the core band sound great with a full on production to boot. It's cheeky, it's Dirty Deeds Acca Dacca and it's a beer drinking, whisky swilling treat from top to bottom.
